

The versatile community management solution

Hitobito is the web-based solution for modern, efficient management of associations, clubs and organisations with structures ranging from simple to complex.

The core functions include flexible, role-based contact and address management, comprehensive course and event management, a mailing system for newsletters, and an invoicing module.

The open architecture enables you to easily integrate third-party solutions with the core functions and add extensions. All of this makes Hitobito a versatile community management tool and a forward-looking, comprehensive solution which meets the needs of your organisation.

Core functions

Organisation and role management

Hitobito allows you to precisely map organisations with federal and distributed structures and to define a role and authorisation system. You can add as many organisational units and associate organisations as you like. And because authorisations are linked to the roles, every user can access the data they need.

Contact and address management

Flexible customer relationship management (CRM) functionality enables you to efficiently manage contacts and their personal and address data. You can also create separate lists and assign tags. The history section displays past interactions with each contact and their activity. An easily navigable log details every change that has been made to the data.

Mailing system

Individual mailing lists and subscriptions allow you to send role-based, targeted emails. You can send mails from your usual email application or from an external provider such as Mailchimp.

Over 3,900 clubs and 300,000 members are currently managed with Hitobito.

Course and event administration

The course administration functions are perfect for administering multi-part courses, seminars and training sessions, from simple to comprehensive. Integrated functions include waiting lists and priorities for individuals who have registered. Simpler sessions are treated as events. You can enter specific information and queries directly when you create an event.

Payments and invoices

You can invoice membership fees, donations and other contributions using the integrated payment and invoicing module. Invoices for courses and events are created directly, and sent and stored electronically.

'Hitobito allows us to perfectly map our federal and trilingual organisational structure, and simply and efficiently manage our events, courses and camps. This innovative open-source solution is the ideal foundation.'
